DARKEN GRAY HAIR. LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Grandma's recipe of Sage Tea an Sulphur darkens so naturally that nobody can tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, when it fades, turns gray, dull and feless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cura mitigation or prevention of disease.

The matter was called to the attention of Captain Joseph Ryan, who from some occult sense, apparently, seemed to derive the tip to head for the Israel Putnam school. Arrived there he asked to see a certain boy and when that particular boy appeared and the captain shot the question: "What did you do with that purse?" the little fellow cringed and came across with explanations. He had taken two of the three dollars he had found in the purse and had given the other dollar to his brother. The purse he had thrown away in the rear of the Bradley theatre. He was ordered to come along with the officer and indicate just where he had thrown the purse, which he did, the article being recovered.

Aside from two cents that the brother had spent for candy the money that was taken was recovered and restored to the owner, who was profuse in her thanks for the splendid police service that made it possible.

MEXICO-AMERICAN COMMISSION DISSOLVED

President Wilson is Considering Withdrawal of Punitive Force.

Further Discussion Impracticable.

The last session of the joint commission continued throughout the latter half of the day. The American commissioners explained to the Mexican representatives that they believed further discussion by them of International questions to be impracticable. Twice General Carranza had refused to ratify the proposol signed at Atlantic City, N. J., in which conditions for the withdrawal of troops had been made, and these refusals the American construed be indicative of what might be expected if the conferences were continued. The Mexicans were told of the visit of the Americans to President Wilson and of the president's sanction of their recommendation that the commission be dissolved. President Wilson Free to Act.

President Wilson Free to Act.

It was pointed out to the Mexicans that the maintenance of an ambassador in Mexico would remove cause for the existence of a commission, since all international questions pending or any that might arise might then be handled through diplomatic channels. It was explained to them that with the dissolution of the commission the president would be free to act independently in the problem presented by the presence in Mexico of an American military force.

Mexicans Expressed Regret. The Mexicans expressed regret that the conferences had been terminated but they, too, admitted that further discussion appeared useless and no effort to have them prolonged was made.

No direct reference was made in the final session to what the attitude of the United States would be if the Americans were withdrawn and new raids across the border by Mexicans were made, but neither was any modification made in the warning of Secretary Lane that accompanied the protocol to Mexico that this government reserved the right to unlimited and unrestricted pursuit of bandits. It was intimated to the Mexicans that when General Pershing's troops were taken out of Mexico it would be when it appeared evident that bandits were not menacing the northern border of Chihushua, the essential condition in the protocol Carranza refused to ratify.
